Sage Creek High School Facts

- One of California’s most environmentally advanced and energy-efficient high school campuses
- State-of-the-art school campus - conveys to the community and students the benefits of high performance design that combines environmental, economic, and social objectives
- 50% of construction waste was recycled, salvaged, or composted during construction
- Designed to emphasize and foster an intellectual understanding and experience of natural systems
- Overall energy costs significantly reduced by one-third due to energy-efficient ventilating systems and westerly breezes caused by the high location of the school
- The campus is organized to minimize impact and grading to the natural environment by integrating the slope into the site design and maintaining the building and site improvement in compact scale
- Re-established wetland drainage swale through the campus to help minimize the storm water run-off into the city storm drain system
- Learning spaces are diverse with many indoor and outdoor venues intended to engage students and provide an inspirational atmosphere for learning
- Quote from John Roach, former Carlsbad Unified School District Superintendent... “The campus demonstrates the dynamic balance of the man-made environment with nature, providing an inspirational atmosphere for learning.”
- Students and staff benefit from improved indoor air quality resulting from the use of low-emitting building and surfacing materials
- Collaborative for High Performance Schools (CHPS) “Verified” Project.
- 2013 ENR California “Top K-12 Education Project” Award Recipient
- AGC Build San Diego award nominee
